

LOS HIJOS DEL MAR

Los Hijos Del Mar (I Leave You the Sea), set during the late nineteenth century in México and in Spain, is based on the lives of the Victorias, who made a name for themselves in México's pharmaceutical industry, and the Muguiras, Spanish immigrants who found success cultivating and trading coffee beans.

The intertwined tales of Los Hijos Del Mar becomes, finally, the story of a child who weaves both families' sagas into a shared destiny. Through the love affair of Licho Victoria and Pilar Muguirra, the book is a rendering of the social tensions still prevalent in Mexico between those who conquered and those who were subjugated.

"The knowledge that the events in these vignettes are true imbues the novel with a palpable life force and the reader partakes in all of the family's joys and sorrows.... Throughout, the author's love and pride shine through in her descriptive language"
